What is the Figure? Edilor of The Citizen:- A certain district of Bloomfield Townsh'p formerly called Ridgewood, and appropriately so, promoters of the scheme are said to be has for some years been known by the wore fanciful if not more fitting name of Gien Ridge. Some enquiring minds have been at a loss to ascertain just what the boundaries of this district are. We are quiry by the doubt if there be any wel defined boundaries to this well refined seighborhood. But it would seem that no such doubt, or even a shadow of one exists in the minds of those who dwell within this charmed circle, or square, or triangle or whatever may be the figure cut by Glen Ridge, though for some reason the figure has never been made public. Our enquiry then is for this figure. From what can be learned of the territory we have grave doubts if any of the ordinary and well known geometrical figures will accurately or approximately describe what we seek. The square might more properly represent the dealings of the people than the district in which they live; as the circle would be more apt to be associated in our minds with certain argumentative tendencies,

The Village of Glen Ridge. A movement to establish a village gov ernment in Glep Ridge is on foot. The anxious for a separation from this town Mr. George S. Porter is credited with being the prime mover in it. The claim it set up that the section of the town popularly termed Gien Ridge does not receive a proper return for the proportion of the tax levy that is paid in that section, the property paying about one fourth of the tax levy. The proposed boundary lines of the contemplated village are said to be as follows: The Montclair Township line from Bay Avenue to the Orange line, and the centre line of Midland Avenue to Washington Avenue, then a direct line to the junction of Bay Avenue and Broad Street. It embraces a long, narrow strip of territory. It is proposed to take advantage of a law passed last winter whereby when one fifth of the property owners in a certain locality present a petition to the Circuit Court asking the privilege to form a Village, the Court fix a date for an election at which the property owners in the perscribed limits can vote on the question. If a majority vote is cast in favor of it the Village can be organized without further legislation. or the triangle suggest their graces of The older residents in the locality are Widowed Domestic The mania for getting married which besets so many domestic servants often results in their finding themselves either widowed or deserted in the course of a few years, with a number of young children to provide for. They are generally both able and willing to return to domestic service, but that way of earning a living is barred to them by the necessity of looking after their incumbrances at home. Knowing of many such cases, a shire proposes the establishment of homes which would take care of the children, the mothers contributing toward their support in proportion to their own earnings.

The author of this scheme of relief believes that it would be gratefully accepted by the mothers as a most wel-come change from the unceasing cares which now make up their daily lives. At the same time it would benefit socity by increasing the supply of women servants, a want which becomes more pressing every year. As a further help toward that object it is proposed that all the girls admitted into the homes should in its several departments.
